Overview

Port de Saint-Tropez is the stage on which the village, the Gulf of Saint-Tropez and the international yachting season all seem to converge. Set on the northern edge of the old town, the harbour opens into a sheltered Mediterranean gulf framed by Sainte-Maxime, Grimaud, Gassin and the Maures hills beyond. Yachts come for practical reasons, including a central Côte d'Azur position, experienced harbour staff, fuel, provisioning and fast access to Pampelonne, but the port's pull is also emotional. Arriving by sea, the ochre bell tower, pastel façades and arcaded cafés appear almost theatrical against a line of varnished classics, chase boats and large motor yachts. Step ashore and everything is immediate: breakfast at Sénéquier, the lanes of La Ponche, Place des Lices, galleries, boutiques, beach clubs and some of the Riviera's most animated summer nights. For charter guests, Port de Saint-Tropez is less a marina stop than an address in the middle of the village.

SHORE TABLES

Nearby dining

Sénéquier

The red-awning terrace is the harbour's best-known address, ideal for breakfast, aperitifs and watching the port come alive. Book ahead for prime summer times.

Le Girelier

A polished waterfront choice for fish, shellfish and classic Riviera plates. Its position on the quay makes it particularly easy for guests stepping ashore.

Café de Paris Saint-Tropez

A lively port-facing brasserie with broad appeal for mixed charter groups. It works well for casual lunches, cocktails and late, people-watching dinners.

La Ponche

Set in the old quarter, this elegant hotel restaurant offers a calmer counterpoint to the main harbour. It suits guests wanting atmosphere without the quay-side bustle.

Dior des Lices

A garden restaurant attached to the Dior house, popular for lunch, tea and refined daytime dining. It is a short stroll from the marina.

Salama Saint-Tropez

A glamorous, sociable address for sharing dishes, cocktails and group dinners. Reservations are essential in July and August.

FALLBACKS

Nearby anchorages

Baie des Canoubiers

Yachts use this close Saint-Tropez anchorage for a quick swim stop and a quieter feel within easy reach of the port.

Pampelonne

The classic beach-club anchorage gives tender access to Ramatuelle's long sandy bay and the peninsula's most famous daytime scene.

Cap Camarat

Clear water, rocky scenery and proximity to the lighthouse make this a rewarding stop when conditions are settled.

L'Escalet

This Ramatuelle anchorage is favoured for turquoise water, snorkelling and a more natural coastline than the main beaches.

Cap Taillat

Yachts come for wild scenery, sandy shallows and one of the most beautiful swimming areas on the Saint-Tropez peninsula.

Baie de Cavalaire

A larger bay west of the peninsula, useful for a change of scene, beach time and shelter depending on wind direction.

TIMING

Seasonal note

The main Saint-Tropez season runs from May to September, with the greatest pressure in July and August and another surge around late-summer regattas and classic-yacht events. Berths, restaurant tables, beach clubs, taxis and even preferred delivery windows should be requested well ahead for peak dates. Weather is typically hot, bright and dry in summer, with afternoon thermal breezes in the Gulf and busy local traffic creating wash around the harbour approaches. The mistral is the wind to watch on this coast: when it blows hard from the north-west, it can alter anchorage choices, delay tender operations and make exposed beaches uncomfortable. Spring and early autumn are often excellent for charters, with softer light, more civilised quay movement and better availability, while many key restaurants and boutiques remain open. September is especially attractive, combining warm water with a more experienced, less frantic yachting rhythm.
